

A peacock no more

A peacock no more

Days of dress privilege of fashion and flair
To make an impression to cause people to stare
But not for others is the statement made
Rather for oneself, pride on parade

A childhood of uniform and bargain clothes
Committed me to display if the occasion arose
An item of quality or rare selection
A natural preference to an own brand collection vanity the prime to reason to pose

To always to wear the best of clothes
Price a perennial issue, never enough cash
So seek a bargain with added dash

With success came wealth and chosen wardrobe
To Exercise passion for fashion, to keep in vogue
But as i mature it has become a bore
And I dress for myself a peacock no more
