Logline: A heartbroken widower journeys to lay his wife ashes in their family birthplace only to be challenged by memories, a forbidden romance and a conspiracy. Tragedy is averted but happiness is not assured.

Just imagine taking your wife's ashes back to your ancestral family home knowing that it would open old wounds. Who would you turn to or trust? Her family? Yours? Her friends? Your friends?

Join Malachy as he tries to lay to rest more than just ashes. His homecoming spoiled by old rivalries and a sinister conspiracy that sees his childhood love homeless and impoverished.

A contained romantic drama set in scenic Eire originating in Liverpool illuminated by quirky engaging characters, suspense and subtle black humour.
